The Organic Pretend Food Choices play set was recently launched on Amazon by Her Pow. Customers can now receive free shipping if they spend over $49. Now available for $29.99, the set can be purchased for less and customers can save more when buying additional sets or items. The 125-piece miniature plastic toy set features custom graphics and four food groups. Food, condiments, and kitchen items are included for hours of imaginative play.

The set includes a complete, six-slice pizza pie plus apples, bananas, carrots, broccoli, cauliflower, and asparagus. A whole mini chicken is included as well. Toddlers will also find eggs, strawberries, potatoes, French bread, and orange slices to play with. Even hamburgers, hot dogs, and crackers and ice cream are included, while juice cartons and condiments complete the set. Kids can pretend to go shopping or prepare meals in their own make-believe kitchen.

Labels feature fun food facts for kids to learn from. There are facts about various organic and healthy foods. Children can include each piece with other kitchen play sets if they wish. There is no limit to the imaginative potential.

Small children are perfectly suited with this as a gift. The product has also been used in preschool environments and in doctor's offices. Pieces are totally safe to play with, throw around, or even put in one's mouth, although attempting to eat them may result in broken teeth.

Her Pow's Play Food Choices set ships in a 1.9-pound package. Available for $29.99 per set, free shipping kicks in if one spends over $49 on their order. Secure shopping, quick ordering, and a Wish List are available from the storefront. Customers can purchase the organic food play set now on Amazon.
