Summit Scapes Construction Provides Tree and Shrub Care as an Established Landscaping Company

August 21, 2026

MANLIUS, NY - August 21, 2026 -
Summit Scapes Construction, a landscaping company serving Central New York, provides tree and shrub care services to help maintain healthy plantings across residential properties in the Manlius and surrounding areas. These services address common issues such as overgrowth, dead branches, and soil conditions that affect plant performance during the growing season and into fall.

The landscaping company offers pruning and trimming to remove damaged, dead, or overcrowded branches. This process improves air circulation within the canopy and reduces the risk of structural failure during high winds or heavy snow loads typical of the region. Selective plant transplanting and tear-outs correct overplanting or misplacement, relocating specimens to more suitable light and soil conditions while opening crowded beds.

Seasonal maintenance forms part of the care program. Spring focuses on new growth support, while summer and late-season work includes watering guidance, mulching around root zones, and preparation for winter. Tree removal, coordinated through licensed partners when needed, handles dead, diseased, or hazardous specimens, including stump grinding for complete site cleanup.

Signs prompting professional attention include wilting or yellowing foliage, bark damage, pest or fungal presence, and branches that interfere with driveways, sidewalks, or power lines. The landscaping company evaluates these conditions during site visits and recommends appropriate interventions based on plant species and local climate factors in Onondaga County.

With 13 years of experience serving Manlius, Fayetteville, and nearby communities, the landscaping company applies knowledge of Central New York soils and weather patterns to each project. Full insurance coverage applies to all services. A one-year warranty covers plant material installed in conjunction with care work.

Tree and shrub care integrates with broader landscape efforts. Proper pruning and root-zone management support the longevity of hardscape features such as walkways and patios by preventing root interference and soil heaving. The approach contributes to safer, more orderly properties that require less reactive maintenance over time.

Residential clients across Madison and Oswego counties also access these services. Projects range from routine annual trimming of established plantings to more extensive corrections of overcrowded beds. The landscaping company provides clear estimates after consultation, factoring plant size, access, and scope.

Plant installation accompanies care services when replacement or addition is warranted. Species recommendations prioritize those suited to regional hardiness zones and site-specific conditions such as sun exposure and drainage. Professional installation techniques promote establishment and long-term growth.

"Regular tree and shrub care reduces hazards and supports plant health through Central New York?s variable seasons," said Jared Van Der Veer, Owner of Summit Scapes Construction. "Pruning and proper placement help properties remain functional and visually balanced."

The landscaping company continues to schedule these services in response to client needs observed during the current season. Team members emphasize early intervention to limit larger structural or disease issues later in the year.

Additional site preparation, including soil amendments around root zones, enhances outcomes. The firm maintains equipment and practices suited to careful work around existing landscape and hardscape elements.

"Paying careful attention to your trees and shrubs will also help protect the plants and the surrounding property features," continued Van Der Veer.
