

Post Electric Expands Commercial Electrician Services Across Southwest Missouri

November 24, 2026

Monett, MO - November 24, 2026 -
Post Electric, an employee-owned, licensed and insured electrical contractor serving Southwest Missouri for more than 15 years, has announced a formal expansion of its commercial electrical services to meet rising demand from businesses throughout the region. The expanded offering focuses on energy-efficient upgrades, code-compliant installations, and specialized support for restaurants and office buildings.

The expansion comes as businesses across the region seek to reduce energy consumption and lower utility costs. As part of the broader service lineup, Post Electric provides LED lighting upgrades for retail spaces, offices, and warehouses, each designed to lower energy use. The company also handles electrical panel installations and code-compliant electrical work for businesses of all sizes.

As a Post Electric Commercial Electrician team, the company brings a Master Electrician on staff and a record of more than 500 completed projects to its commercial work. Specialized services include kitchen equipment installation and maintenance for restaurants, code-compliant ventilation and exhaust system wiring, and electrical support for point-of-sale systems and security cameras. All commercial work is performed by licensed electricians and backed by a one-year workmanship warranty.

"Businesses in Southwest Missouri have different needs than residential clients, and expanding these services allows the team to address those needs directly," said Ryan, a spokesperson for Post Electric. "Many commercial property owners are looking for ways to reduce operating costs, and energy-efficient lighting and modern electrical systems play a significant role in that effort."

The company reports that demand for commercial electrical work has grown steadily as retail spaces, offices, and warehouses update aging systems and pursue greater energy efficiency. Restaurants and office buildings, in particular, often require specialized wiring and equipment support that general electrical work does not cover. The expanded services aim to close that gap with solutions tailored to each type of business.

"The goal is to provide dependable, code-compliant electrical work that keeps businesses running safely," Ryan added. "Whether the project involves a lighting upgrade, a panel installation, or support for kitchen equipment and security systems, every job is completed to the same standard."

Post Electric offers free, no-pressure estimates for commercial projects and maintains 24/7 emergency service availability for businesses that experience electrical issues outside of standard hours. The company serves communities across Southwest Missouri, including Pierce City, Verona, Aurora, Cassville, Springfield, Mount Vernon, Ozark, and Monett.

Post Electric is a family and employee-owned electrical contractor based in Southwest Missouri. Fully licensed and insured, the company has more than 15 years of experience serving residential, commercial, and industrial clients. Its team of licensed electricians completes projects ranging from simple repairs to large-scale installations, always adhering to local codes and safety regulations. The company backs its work with a one-year workmanship warranty and uses current techniques and high-quality materials to support safe and efficient electrical installations throughout the region.
