
Chamber of Commerce Adds Digital Marketing Agency RedFlame Digital

November 25, 2026

ROANOKE, VA - November 25, 2026 -
RedFlame Digital, a digital marketing agency in Roanoke, Virginia, has joined the Salem-Roanoke County Chamber of Commerce. Its listing is now live in the Chamber's online member directory under two business categories. As a member, the agency becomes part of what the Chamber describes as a growing network of businesses and organizations committed to strengthening the regional community.

Within the directory, RedFlame Digital's listing appears in the Advertising/Marketing, Promotions category and in the Web Development category. Headed "Roanoke Digital Marketing Agency," the entry describes RedFlame as a digital marketing agency that works with local businesses, and it names Travis Godec as the agency's founder.

"I've always thought of RedFlame as a local business first, even though we take on clients from other parts of the country," said Travis Godec, founder of RedFlame Digital. "Joining the Chamber feels like a natural part of that. It's good to see our name in the directory with the other businesses that make up this community."

Founded in 1934, the Chamber has spent more than nine decades pursuing its stated mission of creating, promoting, developing and supporting quality business opportunities in the Salem-Roanoke County community. It describes its role as connecting local businesses, leaders and neighbors through relationships and events that strengthen the region. Its signature events include the Regional Apprenticeship Recognition, the Annual Golf Tournament and the holiday Gingerbread Festival and Gingerbread Trail. Alongside those, the organization hosts a variety of networking events and educational workshops, and its website lists gatherings such as Business After Hours at the Hilton Garden Inn and Member Orientation. It also points businesses to its leadership programs and community connections as ways to learn and grow.

The Chamber maintains the searchable member directory where RedFlame's listing now appears and encourages visitors to use it to connect with local businesses throughout its community. It also presents The Pulse, a podcast that goes behind the scenes with local business owners, community leaders and changemakers. The organization includes the Salem-Roanoke County Foundation, a nonprofit that provides scholarships each year to high school seniors who attend local schools and to mid-level career professionals seeking to advance in their field. Membership is open to businesses, and individuals may join as well. The Chamber credits its success to the involvement and dedication of its members, a roster that now includes RedFlame Digital.

According to its listing, RedFlame Digital provides search engine optimization, pay-per-click advertising, web design and AI automation, along with optimization for AI search. The agency works with law firms, medical practices and home service companies, serving Salem and Vinton from its base in Roanoke.

Business hours for the Roanoke digital marketing agency are listed in its Chamber entry as Monday through Friday, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., and the entry also points readers to the agency's own website.
