Site Flipping Plan is a company that teaches individuals and helps entrepreneurs on how to build value to websites in order to sell them on Flippa or other formats. Furthermore, they demonstrate how to perform the necessary due diligence for purchasing a website on Flippa or from personal sellers. They are proud to announce that they will soon launch their 'Value Website Method', which is a special training program in which individuals are walked through a step by step method on getting a virtual website asset and building value to it, in order to help create websites to sell at a profit.

Adrianna Lopez from Site Flipping Plan says: "Everybody knows about flipping on the real estate market, but only a few people realize that the same tactics can be applied to the internet. Every website can be seen as a home that can be purchased, done up, and sold for a profit. What we aim to do is equip people with the necessary skills to do this properly. We're very excited about our new training and are looking forward to people signing up."

Website flipping is a two way process. Firstly, people have to find sites to buy. There are different approaches for this, including purchasing highly optimized sites for a high price, or website attempts that haven't been optimized for a lower price. The higher the price of the website is, the less work has to be done for it, but the smaller the profit margin would be. Purchasing a poorly optimized website can lead to bigger profits, therefore, so long as the buyer knows how to better optimize it.

"We are there to help people regardless of the type of website they buy," adds Adrianna Lopez. "We teach them how to investigate the sites that are available on Flippa and beyond, and then look into what they can do to improve on the site and then put it up for sale. The best site to sell is obviously one that ranks highly on Google already, which is all down to SEO, and we have a wealth of information available to help people implement relevant strategies."
