November 23, 2026

AUSTIN, TX - November 23, 2026 -
Arranging It All, an Austin-based move management and professional organizing company, is announcing its services as a senior moving company in Georgetown for older adults and families planning a downsizing or relocation. The company has served Central Texas since 1997 and includes Georgetown among the communities within its service area.

Arranging It All began in 1997 as a local organizing service and has since grown into a move management company. According to the company, it has more than 25 years of experience in the senior moving industry and has completed more than 10,000 relocations. The company holds Texas NASMM A+ Accreditation and Diamond Member status, and its team includes CPO-certified home organizers.

For Georgetown residents, the company's senior move process follows five stages: floor planning, downsizing and sorting, packing, moving, and unpacking. Floor planning involves personalized floor layouts created through the company's Essence Design service. These layouts are prepared for the client's new residence as part of the planning stage.

During the downsizing and sorting stage, team members work with clients to decide which items will be moved, which will be stored, and which will be given to family members. Closets and cupboards receive particular attention during this process. Removal of unwanted items is also available as part of the company's senior move management offering.

Packing is completed with supplies and boxes intended for fragile items, heirlooms, and art. Moves are completed on the same day, with staff handling loading, transport, and unloading. Arranging It All uses its own in-house moving crew and states that it does not outsource labor. Moving is coordinated with Unicorn Moving & Storage, which is owned by Robert Dicks, the twin brother of Arranging It All owner Charles Dicks, and whose team has more than 30 years of experience.

The final stage takes place at the new residence. Unpacking includes setting up beds, kitchens, and electronics, along with hanging pictures. TV and fixture installation is also offered through the company's turnkey move management service, which additionally covers professional packing and unpacking and residential moving.

Senior move management at Arranging It All also includes consultation and space planning, coordination with family members, and coordination with retirement communities. The company describes itself as certified, insured, and bonded. Its Georgetown service page also lists the company as Accushield compliant.

The Arranging It All team includes former teachers and project managers, and the company notes that many team members have cared for aging parents or managed complex moves themselves. Its team of move management specialists, organizers, and operations staff works under a stated mission of bringing clients peace of mind, an approach the company describes as Texas hospitality.

In addition to senior relocations, Arranging It All offers professional organizing for homes, closets, laundry rooms, home offices, and pantries, as well as decluttering and garage and storage organization. The company's design services include downsizing and rightsizing, and the company also offers move management education. Blog articles, frequently asked questions, and education resources are published on the company website.

Arranging It All is based in Austin, with an office at 2222 W N Loop Blvd, and serves Austin and surrounding Central Texas communities, including Georgetown. Families and older adults looking for a senior moving company in Georgetown can find details on each stage of the process on the company's senior moving page.
