Amazon Reviewer Leaves 5 Star Review For Wholeness Home Hidden Safes

Wholeness Home, a company based in Pasadena, CA that creates household products, is proud to announce that the #8 reviewer from Amazon marketplace has left a glowing 5 star review for their diversion safe with lock. Essentially, the device is a hidden safe that looks like a book. It is perfect for homes, boats, RVs and any other location where someone may want to keep something hidden in a not too obvious way.

"We were so happy when we saw the five star review left by Mandy Payne," says Annie French from Wholeness Home. "Mandy Payne is one of the best reviewers on the entire Amazon sphere and for her to take the time to actually check out our product really means a lot to us."

Wholeness Home has specifically designed their hidden safe to look like an actual book. Indeed, it has a cloth texture exterior and the interior compartment is made of solid steel. This sets it apart from the cheaper lookalikes. The diversion safe with lock can easily be placed on a bookshelf, where it will blend into place with all the others. Essentially, it allows people to hide their valuables, be the documents, passports, Rx bottles, jewelry or money, in plain site. It is perfect for those locations where having a full safe is not practical, such as RVs, boats or vacation homes, or even to go on vacation. While Wholeness Home says the kids will also love it, this is something Mandy Payne disagreed with, although she turned it in a positive.

"This actually looks like a book -- which means my children will avoid it at any length", says Mandy Payne in her review on Amazon. "When I opened the package, I actually thought it was a book and was excited because I haven't had a hardback dictionary in a long time. Instead I found a steel safe...actually a very solid steel safe. It isn't a kids toy. I mean, a kid could use it -- but an adult could also use this and feel pretty secure."

The safe comes with two keys, so that each adult in the household can hold one. It also comes with a 100% money back guarantee for those who are not absolutely happy with their product. However, Wholeness Home does not expect to have to make good on that promise, as they fully stand behind the quality of their product.

The company offers a range of other fantastic and useful household products as well. They are available both via their own website and through Amazon. Each of these products has been positively reviewed, although the hidden safe is the first one to be reviewed by such a public figure. See review here.
