Premier Product Groups Measuring Cups Stainless Steel Metal Receives Top Reviews On Amazon

June 26, 2015

June 26, 2015 -
Superb Chefs recently released their stainless steel metal measuring cups on Amazon. After having been available for just a few days, people already started to leave positive reviews explaining how impressed they were with the quality and functionality of the measuring cups. Superb Chefs are immensely grateful that this will encourage even more people to purchase the measuring cups.

"We are so pleased to see how happy people are with our product", says George Rota from Superb Chefs. "We naturally believe in our measuring cups 100%, but to see other people agreeing with us so quickly after release is a true confidence booster."

Indeed, the available reviews discuss all the things that Superb Chefs believes sets their metal stainless steel cups apart from the crowd. They tried to design something easy to use and easy to clean, moving away from the flimsy BPA plastic models that often have breaking handles or that tip over when they are filled with ingredients. Furthermore, they want to design something that gave people all the measurements they could possibly need, something that many customers have picked up on.

"I should mention that you get 6 cups in the set, not the standard 4", says Lydia Whitehorn. "I love this, because it gives me so many more options. The weight of this set is substantial. It feels like a quality product in your hands. All 6 cups nest into each other perfectly, which means it takes up very little room in my drawer. I also love that each cup has markings (that can't be rubbed off) for other measurements, making them even more versatile."

Superb Chefs sets itself a goal of making a product that would allow people to cook like master chefs in the comfort of their own home and it seems that they have achieved this. Offering six different sizes, marked with both metric and USA standard measuring units, they offer everything anyone could possibly need to cook fantastic dishes. Not just that, however, they have created something that looks great as well. While it is easy to stack the cups by nesting them and putting them away in a drawer, the mirror polished exterior and satin steel interior make these incredibly visually attractive.

"These measuring cups are simply incredible", says AK. "I am used to plastic measuring cups, and trust me when I say they do not hold a candle to these babies. I love how thin the edges are. They are perfect for things like brown sugar. You can easily scoop up what you need. They are easy to clean, and gorgeous. The most amazing aspect of them is that they have additional measurements on the in and outside."

To celebrate the amazing reviews they have received, Superb Chefs is now offering their measuring cups stainless steel metal with a free eBook with tips and techniques for cooking.
