Baltimore, MD - Dependable Homebuyers, the most reliable We Buy Houses company in Baltimore, has received another five-star review. John Sweeny sold his Baltimore house to the real estate investment company and is elated at the entire process. Mr. Sweeny stated: "When I was looking to sell my childhood home it was important for me to sell it to someone who was going to breathe new life into it, and not just renovate it in a cookie-cutter fashion." This is one of many great reviews we've received from homeowners who have chosen Dependable Homebuyers as their trusted real estate partner.

For homeowners, the process of selling a house can be costly. But this once again has financial implications: renovations are expensive!

Homeowners never have to worry about negotiating or repairing faulty plumbing ever again when selling a house to Dependable Homebuyers. If there's anything wrong with the property, whether its major issues like roof leaks or minor ones like an old sink, they will fix them before closing so they don't become new problems

"I inherited this house from my cousin and it was just not something I could fix up or deal with as even renting out," she explains. "It's a little like an art, and we look for the best offer that is fair," says Peter Hendrickson of Dependable Homebuyers. "Most people don't know what their property has been appraised at in recent years or how it compares to other properties on the market."

?We look at the location of the property, what repairs are needed, the current condition of the property, and values of comparable houses sold in the area recently. As many Baltimore homeowners know, house values have taken a huge hit in the last five years and most areas still haven?t seen prices come back up. But that doesn?t mean that the offers we give are low. We always make sure they are fair.? Their website boasts many testemonies from happy customers.

They are often willing to pay for closing costs when the transaction goes through with them so that it's easier on the owner.
