Wholeness Home Launches New Shower Caddy For The College Dorm

September 21, 2015

September 21, 2015 -
Pasadena, California based Wholeness Home has launched a shower accessory that is perfect for use in a college dorm, the local gym lockerroom or for travel. The mesh shower caddy is made of durable matterial and has eight separate pockets, which allow users to keep all of their shower bathroom needs in one place. It offers easy access to the items while also keeping items separate from one another. Its strong mesh and quality stitching make it strong enough to hold all of one's bathroom needs. The product has been designed in such a way that it can be hung on the shower itself or on the back of a door or the edge of a towel rack.

This mesh shower caddy takes up little room and offers enough space for all kinds of products from shampoo and conditioner to soaps, shacing accessories, sponges and more. Its small size and versatility makes it very popular with both college students and gym goers. Many users report that they leave the caddy filled with supplies in their car and just carry it to their gym lockers using it both as storage and as transport. Other reviewers have noted that they fold the caddy flat and take it with them on vacations and business trips.

Annie French, a spokesperson for Wholeness Home, released a statement about the new product launch. She said, "This caddy is durable and versatile. When we first decided to offer it, we thought what a great item for college dorms with shared bathrooms and for travel in general. Soon we started to hear from customers that they are now a mainstay in their lockers at the local gym! It's great when one product can meet so many different needs!"

Wholeness Homes is backing the product with a 100 percent manufacturer's money back guarantee. Founded in 2013, the company offers a wide range of home and kitchen products to consumers, designed with the whole home in mind. The company celebrate the launch with a back to school sale offering the caddy at 40% off. Wholeness Home is dedicated to offering qulaity home and garden products to the consumer at affordable prices. They are slowly expanding their offerings on the Amazon marketplace and expect to launch more items for the home in the last quarter of the year.
