

Natural Sleep Aid Supplement Co. Employee Realizes 2016 Outstanding Research

October 07, 2016

October 07, 2016 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Larry Westland, employee of Ulatlife, was honored with the 2016 Outstanding Research Award for doing extensive research on the company's sleep aid and providing comprehensive solutions for problems that needed to be solved in the sleep aid industry.

Each year, innovative health and wellness creator Ulatlife gives this special award to its best employee. Larry Westland has shown tremendous commitment over the past year. In his duties as chief developer he has repeatedly shown his excellence at critically thinking through problems and providing intuitive yet unique and creative solutions to complex chemical problems and effectively utilizes resources with minimal waste. He's also liked and admired by both customers and staff. These are all qualities Ulatlife holds in especially high regard.

Ulatlife gives it's 2016 Outstanding Research Award because it believes the most important element in its business after it's customers are it's employees. Jen Henze, spokesperson of Ulatlife said: "Many companies don't show any appreciation to their employees at all. But here at Ultalife we like to recognize the great work our employees do and show them that we are paying attention and giving them the recognition they so richly deserve for the hard work they do every day."

"Larry Westland is a fantastic worker with a great attitude. He delivers brilliant solutions to sleep aid problems at a fantastic pace and is a pleasure for his fellow staff to work with. Every day he shows that he really cares about helping customers sleep better and is always willing to go the extra mile?" Henze continued. "Larry displays exactly what we stand for at Ultalife...providing services and remedies that may help customers sleep better, feel better, and live the ultimate life. We're especially proud of Larry for that. He's a very deserving award winner."
