October 14, 2016 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Detroit, Michigan based Wolverine Studios has announced the launch of their newest pro basketball sim, Draft Day Sports Pro Basketball 2017. The company has shown in a recent video that this new game is shaping up to be better than previous versions, complete with new features.

"Of course, we're excited," says Gary Gorski with Wolverine Studios. "This has been a while in the making and our supporters loved last year's version. We can't wait to show them what this year's version is all about."

Gorski says that the new version features a matchup maker that will allow players to pit their favorite teams from 1976 through 2015 against each other in exhibition matchup games, so they can gauge who would be the best of all time. New expanded historical play is also featured, which allows players to begin in modern times or in any year dating back to 1976, and "rewrite basketball history."

"It's just the best Pro Basketball Sim that we've ever had," says Gorski. "We really can't wait to see what the players have to say."

The company has also added more stats like lineup tracking so players can keep track of how each of their lineups are doing, in addition to new game options like injury slider controls and randomizing historical draft classes. Players also have new control options for scouting, trading, and player interactions. Gorski says that those who are interested in hearing about the new features and seeing them in action can take a look at the company's Basketball Sim announcement video which gives a detailed look at all of the new game features.

The company says that anyone who is new to the franchise can get a good idea of what it is all about by watching the video, which details some of the new features that were added to the game last season as well.

Those interested in learning more or keeping up to date with future releases by the company can connect with them on their official Facebook page at <https://www.facebook.com/wolverinestudios/>. Gorski says players can also interact with the company and other players on the Facebook page.
