The line of shower curtains are meant to be a canvas for James? exceptional talent and unerring eye, and she aims to bring a touch of nature to the hearts of homes across the country. The photo of the skies above the Ashokan reservoir in Upstate New York offers a lovely escape into the expansive and hopeful feelings inspired by nature.

The brand designs all their products with their customers in mind. This means that they are made of a highly durable polyester, which grants them improved longevity and ensures they stay like new for an extended period. I chose the skies above the reservoir as the photograph for this shower curtain because I wanted to evoke the feeling of brilliance I feel in Ashokan in people across the world.?
