Dog Vitamins Receive Five Star Review

December 27, 2017

Costa Mesa, California - December 27, 2017 -
Zenapet is a company that has recently launched a vitamin product for dogs. The product is available on Amazon, where many people have had the opportunity to try it on their dogs. The company is proud to announce that they have now received a new five star review in relation to the product known as Immune Support.

Caren Collins from Zenapet says: "We are always happy to hear from our customers. Our goal is to provide a product that brings nothing but goodness to dogs, supporting their overall health and happiness. When people tell us that is exactly what they have been able to achieve with their pets, we couldn't be happier."

The Zenapet dog vitamins have been designed to significantly improve a dog's quality of life. It contains natural ingredients that can help to support a dog's health, immune system, and overall happiness. Maintaining a healthy immune system in dogs is incredibly important, particularly since there are currently so many pollutants they have to combat, and these are found in their air, their food, and their water.

"We want to help people give their dogs the opportunity to fight all the different toxins and pathogens around them," adds Caren Collins. "We use only nutritional, plant-based ingredients in our product, which is packed full of essential vitamins to support a dog's overall health and happiness."

The reviewer in question discusses how they were able to save a significant amount of money on an operation on their dogs, and how family members have had similar positive experiences, which is why they gave it a 5 star customer review. The reviewer says, "Bought this for my miniature schnauzers that have 'schnauzer bumps' (AKA fatty tumors) that they have had for about three years [...] I bought this after my brother in law used it on his own dog that had a tumor in his throat so large that he couldn't bark, and after two months, his tumor has disappeared! Awesome stuff!"

Zenapet also offers customers a full money back guarantee should they not be completely satisfied with the results. However, considering the many glowing reviews, it is unlikely that anyone will have need to use this guarantee.
