Rasmussen Jewelers Highlights In-House Jewelry Repair Services Across Utah and Wyoming Locations

March 30, 2026

SPANISH FORK, UT - March 30, 2026 -
Rasmussen Jewelers provides in-house jewelry repair services at its three locations in Spanish Fork, Utah, Rock Springs, Wyoming, and Laramie, Wyoming. The company handles various repair needs, including fixing loose stones, resizing rings, and restoring pieces through its team of skilled goldsmiths. This capability supports customers who bring in items requiring professional attention, drawing on the business's established expertise in jewelry craftsmanship.

The repair process at Rasmussen Jewelers begins with an assessment of the item to determine the necessary work. Goldsmiths address common issues such as prong tightening, chain repairs, and general maintenance to ensure pieces remain wearable. These services extend to both custom creations and purchased jewelry, allowing for ongoing care of items over time.

Michael Rasmussen, Co-Owner of Rasmussen Jewelers, commented on the role of repairs. "In-house jewelry repair services enable the restoration of pieces while maintaining their original design and quality through experienced craftsmanship," Michael Rasmussen said.

As a jewelry store with more than 130 years of family experience, Rasmussen Jewelers integrates repair work into its operations. The Spanish Fork location, along with the Wyoming sites, offers these services without the need for external referrals in most cases. This approach provides consistency for customers seeking to maintain their jewelry collections.

Stephenie Rasmussen, Co-Owner of Rasmussen Jewelers, added detail on the service. "Jewelry repair forms a key part of our offerings, allowing clients to extend the life of meaningful pieces through professional techniques developed over generations," Stephenie Rasmussen said.

Repair examples include securing center stones in engagement rings and addressing wear on everyday items. The in-house team manages these tasks using tools and methods aligned with industry standards. Customers often return with pieces from previous purchases or family heirlooms for evaluation and work.

The company's diamond and bridal collections benefit from these repair capabilities, as stones and settings receive attention when needed. Fashion jewelry, including necklaces and bracelets, also undergoes repairs to restore functionality and appearance. This service complements the custom design process, where repurposing or updating existing items occurs alongside repairs.

Rasmussen Jewelers maintains its focus on practical support for jewelry owners in the communities it serves. The Spanish Fork site handles local requests, contributing to the regional network that covers Utah and Wyoming. Repair work reflects the business's emphasis on longevity and care for items that mark personal milestones.

With its family heritage, Rasmussen Jewelers applies traditional skills to modern repair demands. The process involves detailed inspection and execution to achieve durable results. Educational guidance during repairs helps customers understand care practices for their jewelry.

The availability of in-house repairs distinguishes the operations at each location. Customers bring in items for assessment, receiving updates on the scope of work required. This transparency supports informed decisions regarding maintenance or restoration. Rasmussen Jewelers continues to offer jewelry repair as part of its comprehensive services. The Spanish Fork location remains active in providing these capabilities to area residents, consistent with the company's presence across its three sites.

Operating with principles centered on integrity and trust in all aspects of its work, including repairs, Rasmussen Jewelers emphasizes the importance of customer relationships. The skilled team takes pride in each repair, ensuring that every piece is handled with care. They strive to restore jewelry to its original beauty while providing valuable insights for future care. The family-owned business sustains its commitment to craftsmanship through experienced handling of client items, creating lasting connections with those they serve.
