CMS Social, a marketing company based in Miami, Florida, has announced that Twitter management is making a big splash in online marketing trends. The company provides a number of social media services to businesses who aren't able to, or who need help managing the content and customer interaction that goes on within the different platforms. They have made it clear that they believe the future of the marketing world is based in social media, and that by taking advantage of their unique services, businesses can boost brand recognition and build a more loyal customer base.

Twitter management company provides various levels of service in the form of their social media management packages. Most of the packages provide content posting for platforms such as Facebook, Twitter, Google+, Pinterest, and LinkedIn, while their Twitter based package provides additional management services such as comment, message, and sharing response. They have said the following regarding their work in this field:

"We take the stress out of your social media marketing by creating and posting content on a daily basis to all your social channels including: Facebook, Twitter, Google Plus, Pinterest, and LinkedIn."

Something that CMS Social has suggested sets them apart from much of the competition within this field of marketing is their social media pricing, which is affordable and includes a number of variables made obvious on the company website. They encourage businesses to check out the breakdown of each feature and how it can work to their advantage online, and to contact them using the easy to fill in contact form. The price points listed on the website are made in monthly payments, and each includes customer service as a top priority. CMS Social has stated:

"We have an extensive checks & balances system in place to ensure the content being posted to your accounts are relevant, engaging, and represent your business in a professional manner."

When utilizing the contact feature found at <http://www.cmssocial.com/contact-us/> the Twitter management company requests that businesses take the opportunity to scan their FAQ page and company blog for more up to date and in depth information regarding the management tools and what they have done for other companies who have utilized them. The goal of CMS seems to be to take pressure off of management and other business representatives in terms of creating consistently unique content each day or week for Twitter, Facebook and other platforms now being used regularly by clients to monitor friends, colleagues, and companies they are interested in.

CMS Social promotes the idea that social media is the most obvious next step that most businesses should be taking in their marketing strategies, especially if they are startups or trying to rebrand themselves. The sharing and comment features provided by much social media allows communication between consumers as well as their favorite businesses which makes brands seem more human and easy to connect with. The team at CMS helps these relationships flourish through their interesting take on content management, and by continuing to respond to consumer comments and provide feedback to the companies they service.
