

Television Repair at Tand's TV Pros In Sacramento Expands To Folsom, CA

January 24, 2017

January 24, 2017 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Tand's TV Pros in Sacramento has announced the expansion of their services to the Folsom, California area. The company works on all kinds of television issues and models including Samsung, Vizio, Mitsubishi, Toshiba, and more. The company states that they are currently expanding to provide television repair in Elk Grove CA as well.

"We are pleased to announce this expansion in our service area," says a spokesperson for the television repair company. "Our aim is to provide the best television repair services in the region, and we look forward to working with new customers."

The company offers services to fix televisions, including complex issues. The company spokesperson says that while customers can often handle their own repairs for some minor issues, an inexperienced person should never attempt to open up a television set. He states that their new service area was decided upon to help television owners to avoid the complications that can come along with attempting to fix their own television sets in the Folsom area. The company states that new service areas may also follow in the future and urges customers to check their website for regular updates.

"You really need to possess experience before you open up the back of a television set and try to repair it," the company spokesperson states. "Our professionals are trained and experienced in all things that are television related and will ensure that your repairs are done quickly and effectively."

The company states that new customers in the Folsom area can contact them either by phone or through their official website at <http://tandstvpros.com>. Company representatives will speak with customers and find out about the problem, asking questions to determine the severity of the issue. They state that customers should take notes about what the television set is doing so that their technicians can know which equipment is needed to offer the required repairs. The company does not charge for calling the hotline, only for actual parts and repair services. Those in the new service area that are interested in learning more can reach out to the company via their official website.
