December 24, 2025

MEDIA, PA - December 24, 2025 -
Schuster Law has announced an expanded commitment to representing individuals in premises liability cases throughout Delaware County, Pennsylvania. The firm assists clients who have been injured due to unsafe property conditions, negligent maintenance, or inadequate safety measures in residential, commercial, or public settings.

?Premises liability cases require careful evaluation of property conditions and the responsibilities of owners or managers under Pennsylvania law,? said Ken R. Schuster, Esq., founder and managing attorney of Schuster Law. ?Our work focuses on documenting the circumstances of each incident and ensuring that all relevant safety standards and legal duties are reviewed.?

Founded in 1998 and based in Media, Pennsylvania, Schuster Law represents clients across Delaware County in a variety of civil matters, including personal injury, workers? compensation, and Social Security claims. The firm?s premises liability practice addresses injuries occurring in shopping centers, apartment complexes, office buildings, and other privately or publicly maintained spaces. Each case is evaluated based on the duty of care owed by the property owner and the condition that caused the injury.

Premises liability law in Pennsylvania establishes that property owners must maintain reasonably safe environments for lawful visitors. When accidents occur due to hazards such as wet floors, broken handrails, inadequate lighting, or uneven walkways, injured individuals may have grounds for legal action. Schuster Law assists clients in gathering evidence, obtaining maintenance records, and interviewing witnesses to determine whether negligence contributed to the incident.

Slip-and-fall accidents are among the most common premises liability claims. The firm reviews inspection policies, safety procedures, and weather-related maintenance to determine whether owners took appropriate precautions. By analyzing these details, Schuster Law helps identify whether the hazardous condition existed long enough that the responsible party should have corrected it or provided adequate warning.

In addition to slip-and-fall claims, Schuster Law handles cases involving inadequate security, defective construction, or unsafe building design. These claims may arise when a property owner fails to install proper lighting, repair access points, or maintain structural integrity. The firm also represents individuals injured by falling objects, collapsing structures, or insufficient crowd control in public venues.

Schuster Law?s attorneys coordinate with engineering and safety experts to assess whether a property met applicable codes or inspection requirements. This expert analysis assists in establishing whether the owner or manager violated accepted safety standards or industry practices. The firm?s structured approach ensures that evidence is gathered promptly and that clients? claims are supported by documentation that meets evidentiary standards in Pennsylvania civil courts.

The firm also assists individuals injured on government or municipal property, where notice and filing deadlines differ from private claims. These cases require compliance with the Pennsylvania Political Subdivision Tort Claims Act, which imposes specific procedures and limitations on recovery. Schuster Law?s experience in navigating these statutory requirements helps claimants avoid procedural errors that could prevent their cases from moving forward.

In every premises liability matter, the firm considers the full scope of damages available under state law. This includes medical expenses, wage loss, rehabilitation costs, and the impact of long-term physical limitations. Attorneys prepare detailed records to support claims and work to resolve disputes through negotiation or, when necessary, formal litigation.

Ken R. Schuster, Esq., has more than 30 years of experience practicing law in Pennsylvania, including extensive work in personal injury and civil litigation. His leadership has shaped the firm?s emphasis on legal precision, ethical practice, and accessibility for clients throughout Delaware County. Under his direction, Schuster Law continues to focus on factual investigation and compliance with court procedures in all liability cases.

The firm?s office in Media serves clients across Delaware County, including Chester, Upper Darby, Springfield, and surrounding municipalities. Schuster Law?s expansion of premises liability representation reflects its continued effort to provide legal guidance to individuals affected by hazardous property conditions.
