TacPack Offers New Grab Bag Options to Customers

April 01, 2019

April 01, 2019 -
Columbus, OH - Customers now have more of a selection when it comes to grab bags that are purchased from TacPack. The company recently announced different size bags that can be purchased, which includes mini, regular, and biggie sizes at varying price points. Customers can pay $15 for mini bags, $30 for regular bags, and $50 for biggie bags while receiving a variety of tactical and EDC gear.

The Grab Bag Mini includes one item and one patch for customers who want to obtain a simple package. The products included have a retail value of $40 and can improve the performance of the customer?s setup. The Grab Bag Regular is considered to be the standard size that delivers $60 worth of random gear and swag. The Grab Bag Biggie offers $100 in valued gear with an incredible mix of different products that are in demand.

The company is outfitting each bag with a surplus of cool tactical gear that has accumulated in recent years and can be enjoyed by customers who are looking for a deal. There?s a limited supply of available grab bags, which means that they won?t last long. Each bag ships out in one to three days after the order is placed. Customers are free to cancel their subscription at any time without any strings attached. There are no fees or wait involved to make for a smooth and convenient subscription service. Customers can easily email the company when they want to request a cancellation.

About TacPack

TacPack was founded in 2015 and offers subscription boxes for monthly EDC, tactical, and survival gear in the Shooting Equipment and Supplies industry. Customers receive a curated pack that includes different types of tactical and survival products to their front door. Each box has an average retail value of $135. The subscription price for customers is $49.99. A limited amount of the previous month?s boxes are available, which means customers can often order the most recent box that was shipped out.

The company?s website includes retail products where customers can shop for t-shirts, hats, rail systems, patches, muzzle devices, mag carriers, range kits, slings, anti-rotation, pins. TacPack works hard to only include items that are useful to customers, which is why each product is tested before it goes out. The most useful and professional gear is used to ensure customers receive products that are high-quality and exceed the customer?s expectations. The highest valued box has a retail value of $124. The type of products included varies depending on the partnerships and deals that are made with other companies. Each supplier differs, but the large volume of TacPack subscribers allows the company to obtain excellent deals for their community.
