April 23, 2019 -

5 Stars Movers in New York NY, has announced a complete overhaul of their website. The company recently stated that their website has been redone so that it now features the type of high end cars that they store. The re-design is to help properly showcase their services to the clientele of these exotic cars.

Michael with the company says, "We wanted people to know just by viewing our site what specific types of cars we store, and we believe that this new site offers them a great insight into what we do."

5 Stars Movers offers New York NY car storage that is uniquely tailored to high end vehicles. The company states that their storage is very personal and that they provide both long and short term storage solutions as well as protection and maintenance for automobiles. Michael says that clients spend a lot of money on their vehicles and want to know that those vehicles are safe when they are stored somewhere other than the owner's home.

"You don't spend this much money on a car and not keep it safe," Michael says. "We know how adamant people are about their vehicles and how safe they want to keep them, which is why we strive to provide the best in high end vehicle storage for our clients."

Michael says that the decision to redesign the website was based on the feedback that they have gained from customers. He states that the company believed that customizing the site based on the actual types of vehicles stored on their premises would better reach their clients and let people in the area know what types of vehicles they cater to.

The company says that they are more than merely a storage facility and state that they provide a destination spa of sorts for high end cars. The company was founded on necessity and passion for exotic vehicles and has been established as a home away from home for cars that require detailed security and special care while they are in storage.
