

Pick My Blender Releases Reviews On New Blenders

March 04, 2017

March 04, 2017 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Pick My Blender is an online business that reviews new and existing blenders on the market. They have now announced that they have recently released a wealth of new reviews to enable people to make smart consumer decisions. This comes after there has been a recent increase in the number of available blenders, but also in the number of accidents involving these appliances.

A spokesperson for PickMyBlender.com, Terry G. says: "With summer creeping up on us, people are starting to try and lose weight, and blenders are almost essential for this. Plus, summer is all about fruity drinks and cocktails, for which blenders are also required. Unsurprisingly, a lot of manufacturers have released new blender models, and we want to make sure people are able to choose the one that best suits their needs."

For Pick My Blender, a significant concern is the fact that, whenever there is a surge in new products on the market, many of them are of low quality. However, they are always attractively priced, which makes them interesting to the majority of the public. Unfortunately, many of these blenders are generally a waste of money, as they don't function properly, break down quickly, and, most worrisome is the lack the safety features required on a good machine.

Terry G. adds: "There have been a number of reports on people sustaining truly horrific injuries as a result of their blenders not having the right safety features. We regularly release new reviews on blenders and always discuss the safety elements for each. For us, no matter how good a blender is, it will never be worth the money unless it is also safe."

Recent research has revealed that blenders have been responsible for more accidents than chip pans and, when accidents do happen, they tend to be worse than those with chip pans as well. It is believed that one of the reasons for this is that people have a sense of false security when they use a blender. Through its information and blender reviews, Pick My Blender hopes to make sure people can enjoy tasty, healthy food and drinks, in a safe way.

###

For more information about PickMyBlender.com, contact the company here:PickMyBlender.comTerry

Ginfo@pickmyblender.com

PickMyBlender.com

Why I started this site. I were buying a new blender and started talking about how dissatisfied I were with the sparse information online. Try walking into a store and making a good choice without pulling out your cell phone and looking at reviews.

Website: <http://pickmyblender.com/>

Email: info@pickmyblender.com

Powered by PressAdvantage.com