Fantastic Trades Global, a company that provides various electronic product accessories on Amazon, has just released their Protekme iPhone 6 case on Amazon at a limited release of just $12.99. The case, which has many benefits, has been positively reviewed by shoppers. It is believed that, at this price, the product will sell very quickly.

"We recently held a promotional event for our Protekme iPhone 6 case", says Angelo Ally from Fantastic Trades Global. "Essentially, we introduced our product to bloggers by holding a giveaway contest. In return for a free Protekme, the blogger would be asked to leave an honest review. We were very happy with the results and the product has started to sell very quickly."

The Protekme case is perfect for people who don't regularly carry a handbag and don't feel comfortable putting their phone in their pockets. The iPhone 6 is notoriously big, and it can be difficult to put it in a pocket without risking it falling out. However, simply carrying it by hand is not really a viable option either. The Protekme comes with a holster and clip so that it can simply be attached to the belt.

It is also a very popular items among professionals who already have to carry many things with them. For instance, electricians, handymen, plumbers and other such professionals often don't have enough pockets to keep their phone in and, if they do, it is not kept safely and securely, risking damage or loss. Considering the cost of the iPhone 6, this must naturally be avoided.

Women also enjoy the case very much. It doesn't have to be clipped to a belt, but can also be clipped to the inside of a bag or to their pockets. This means that the phone is always easy to find, rather than being swamped by various other items contained in a woman's handbag. Some reviewers have even mentioned that they clip the case to their bra, so that they can keep their phone comfortably on their own person.

Essentially, the clip is designed to make sure people no longer lose or misplace their phone. It looks stylish and is very comfortable and versatile. These are some of the things reviewers on Amazon have mentioned.

"Due to the design it is easy to place my phone into the half that clips onto my belt - it is also easy to retrieve the phone when needed", says Swapnil. "The phone is protected on all sides and the stand that is part of the piece that the phone goes in is very handy either to use the phone vertically or horizontally. I would recommend this brand and style of Protekme to anyone who prefers to protect their phone in a case that attaches to your belt. It is very nice, well made and comfortable to wear. I tried to use the built-in kickstand on the iPhone 6. Its total plus for this case. You can keep it vertical or horizontal and watch the movie too."
