Odenton, Md.? Allogram, Inc. and Amanda Gianotti have been selected to participate in the 2019 Capital One Catapult Program 3.0. The Baltimore awards company is excited to participate in the program.

The Capitol One Catapult Program 3.0 is delivered using instructional courses, collaborative thinking workshops, one-on-one meetings with subject matter experts, and dedicated advisors for each participating company. The program provides the building blocks needed to develop technology-driven and innovative solutions to business challenges.

The program began with instructional courses and mentoring sessions in two-day sessions that were scheduled monthly between March and July 2019. The sessions were held in Capital One?s Digital Lab in Plano, Texas. Gianotti and one of her team members traveled to Plano to develop their solution to a technology challenge.

The Catapult program culminates with a competitive pitch to be held in the Washington, D.C. area in September 2019. Program participants will deliver a 10-minute presentation of their solution to a complex business problem before a panel of judges. The winner will be awarded a cash grant of $20,000 to assist in the proposed solution. The program is limited to 10 companies who are selected through a competitive application process.

?Allogram is committed to creating a technological and innovative solution to define and document our customers? journey from prospect to order to completion and follow up,? the team at the custom awards company in Baltimore writes. ?Our goal is to streamline communications, production, and marketing to provide the best customer experience. We are looking forward to participating in this valuable program and raising the bar for customer communication and service in our industry.?
