Round Rock, Texas company Barefoot Retirement, LLC has recently released their new retirement CheckUP. The checkup is said to take just a few minutes to complete and is completely free. It is a tool designed to help people project where they will be at retirement, allowing them to make certain adjustments to be more comfortable when they retire.

"Okay, so when's the last time you had a Retirement CheckUP?" says Doyle Shuler from Barefoot Retirement, LLC. "Pretty much anything that is important to you... you get checked up, right? So why haven't you gotten a retirement checkup lately?"

According to Barefoot Retirement, the biggest issue is that good retirement checkups tend to be expensive. Some cost $500 or more. They also added that retirement checkups are known to be complicated, confusing and overwhelming. For a retirement calculator, there are very few that are truly easy to use and understand. Barefoot Retirement feels that some alturnative checkups require customers to call and speak with a financial advisor in order to get the results of their retirement check up and find out their retirement number. They want to break away from this and allow people to get their results without having to talk with anyone if they choose to, and make their own decisions based on sound, written, financial advice.

"On average, people spend 25 to 30 years of their life in retirement," adds Doyle Shuler. "That is a long time and shows just how important it is to be prepared. This is why we allow you to get your free CheckUP now, no strings attached."

The Barefoot Retirement tool is said to be very quick to complete, taking just two minutes, and has been designed to be user friendly. Furthermore, it is not followed by required conversations with financial advisors, although users can choose to contact Barefoot Retirement themselves if they do have any questions following their CheckUP.

The company has also included a free book with the CheckUP. This highlights further important details about how to calculate retirement and why it is so important. Their retirement planner calculator allows people to see when they can retire if they stay on the current track. This also allows them to see what changes they need to make to reach their retirement goals or want to retire earlier.
