Wanderlust, a company in Burlingame, CA, has announced that they have recently launched a brand new product. As with most of their products, the new item is targeted specifically at those who are passionate about running. The new compression running socks are currently exclusively available on Amazon, where they have already started to receive positive reviews.

A representative from Team Wanderlust says: "We stand for those who have wanderlust, particularly those who want to hike, walk, or run. We aim to make their life as comfortable as possible so that they can completely focus their mind on what they are doing and where they are going. Our new running socks have been developed to make that possible."

The Wanderlust compression socks come with a 100% satisfaction guarantee. They are designed to fit perfectly, provide maximum endurance, resist blisters, and last a lifetime. The compression feature is of particular importance, as this promotes blood circulation, supports the arch, and reduces pain, fatigue, and swelling, particularly for endurance runners.

People have also hailed the socks' advanced moisture wicking and blister resistance. The socks contain anti-microbial bamboo charcoal yarn, which helps keep the feet clean and dry. Furthermore, the cyclonic mesh weave releases moisture and heat. Finally, the rear tabs provide protection against rubbing and friction, and therefore blisters.

"He likes the fit, they aren't too low on the ankles and run true to size. They are very comfortable and wick away so he doesn't have to deal with stinky feet when he takes his shoes off which has been a problem for him all his life. One thing he did notice is how much his feet felt better at the end of the day..." says an Amazon customer.

Wanderlust prides itself on having created compression socks that fit perfectly, including right and left foot designations. Furthermore, it has an ergonomic heel and a loose cuff. They have been found to be suitable for men and women alike. Finally, the company has meticulously tested each pair of socks to ensure that they are built to last and are of the highest quality, offering a full satisfaction guarantee on them.
