June 16, 2017 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Bariatric Mexico Surgery is a facilitator company that aims to help people find the best solution for their weight loss journey, with a focus on bariatric surgery. To achieve this, they frequently release information on the impact of this type of surgery on the lives of patients, thereby empowering them to make the right decision. They have now announced that they have published a blog post at <https://www.bariatricmexicosurgery.com/bariatric-surgery/how-intragastric-balloons-can-kick-start-the-weight-loss-journey/> that shows the impact of bariatric surgery on joint replacement.

"We want to make sure people know exactly what they are getting into when they decide to have bariatric surgery of any kind," says Alma Orozco from Bariatric Mexico Surgery. "With obesity statistics continuing to worsen across the United States and the world, demand for treatment continues to rise as well. Obesity has an impact on every element of a person's body, and many people are heading towards needing joint replacement in order to continue to be mobile. Through bariatric procedures, however, they may be able to avoid this."

In the latest post, Bariatric Mexico Surgery encourages people to consider having an intragastric balloon to help them start their weight loss journey. These balloons can be used to help people lose sufficient weight to be a candidate for full surgery. At the same time, people who are on the lower scale of obesity can use the balloon to avoid needing surgery at all. It gives them a six month period to rapidly lose weight, while at the same time learning to adopt healthier lifestyle habits so that they can sustain the weight loss even after the balloon is removed.

Alma Orozco adds: "Intragastric balloons are real life-savers for many people. Weight loss as a result of these balloons is rapid, instantly reducing the pressure on their joints as well. This gives them the opportunity to avoid surgery for a full replacement. If they have already had a joint replacement, losing weight through an intragastric balloon will help them to heal better and ensure that the joint replacement will last as long as possible."

People are encouraged to review the information presented on the Bariatric Surgery Mexico website to help them make the right decision with regards to this type of surgery.
