Based in Lago Vista, TX, but working with customers, tradesmen and local businesses across the nation, Video Chat a Pro has released a new commercial to highlight the benefits of their platform to all potential users. Video Chat a Pro is a new medium perfect for connecting homeowners, ?Do it Yourselfers? and anyone interested in receiving a precise estimate or some guidance with skilled professionals who can help them along their path. While more skilled trades additions are planned for the future, Video Chat a Pro currently works with plumbers, automotive mechanics, electricians, landscapers, appliance repair technicians and HVAC specialists around the country.

Founded in 2018 by Jason Bauder, Video Chat a Pro functions as the next evolution of the business listing directory. Not only does it allow a variety of trades? businesses the opportunity to provide their contact information for prospective customers throughout the country, but more importantly, it provides a way for these customers and the skilled professionals they need to connect over secure, live video chats. These live video chats can be used to get in touch with local businesses and obtain precise repair or installation estimates by showing the tradesmen the exact issues, thus leaving the customer with an exact quote and the technician with a complete understanding of the problem.

The live video chats can also be used to connect skilled tradesmen with ?Do it Yourselfers? and others who are looking for guidance to fix problems themselves. While many people attempt to fix or install things on their own and turn to online ?How To...? blog posts or YouTube videos in their time of need, Video Chat a Pro offers something that the other methods simply can?t: specific, personalized advice in real-time. It can be difficult to find information online that addresses both the specific problem and the exact model number of the appliance, type of plumbing fixture or year and make of automobile a person is working on. Now ?Do it Yourselfers? have another option.

?Video chat a pro has been my dream these last few years,? the founder, Jason Bauder said. ?And now with the current situation going on, it looks like the perfect time for trades businesses and tradesmen to make use of this platform to safely deliver their best services to their clients.?

With the country attempting to recover from the coronavirus pandemic, Video Chat a Pro offers homeowners, tradesmen and local service businesses a new way to safely do business. Homeowners can get precise estimates from local businesses, whether it?s plumbers, automotive mechanics, electricians, landscapers, appliance repair technicians or HVAC specialists, and set appointments for when the economy opens back up again. At the same time, ?Do It Yourselfers? can work with skilled tradesmen through the live video chat to complete projects at home while still practicing social distancing during these unprecedented times.
