Sprinklers cut the risk of dying in a home fire by 80 percent, according to the National Fire Protection Association. Home, office and every type of building that has fire sprinklers protect firefighters, maintain structural stability and prevent flashover, allowing fire crews to conduct search-and-rescue operations and attack the fire.

Sprinklers save property as well as lives, reducing the average property loss per home or building by about 70 percent in a fire.

Seventeen years after a dormitory fire killed three students at Seton Hall University, New Jersey legislators are renewing their push to improve fire safety at colleges and universities nationwide. Also, with today's violent climate of mass shootings and the related fire issues that have become apparent, it's important to research fire safety in general.

After the Seton Hall fire, New Jersey passed a state law requiring on- and off-campus school residence halls to be retrofitted with fire sprinklers. The state has not had any campus fire fatalities since.

New York requires public and private colleges to inform students and their families whether college-owned and operated housing is protected with sprinklers. Fire sprinklers should be installed in every building to protect lives and property.

Since 2000, there have been an additional 170 higher education-related fire fatalities, according to recent studies.

Wisconsin, Delaware, Illinois and Wyoming have passed laws requiring fire sprinklers. Fire sprinklers are not a luxury anymore, the need for fire safety is clear.

Empire Fire Sprinklers NYC is a one stop shop for ensuring the safety of the lives and property entrusted to your care. Work is guaranteed, and complete satisfaction is assured.
