Barton Heights is a suburb in the Northside area of Richmond, Virginia. It was developed between 1890 and the 1920s and was a streetcar suburb, a monicker given to communities whose growth was influenced by the construction of streetcar lines that connected them to the busier parts of the city they were closest to. Barton Heights was linked via streetcar in 1894 across the deep ravine of the Bacon's Quarter branch of Shockoe Creek, which flows into the Shockoe Valley. It was annexed by the city of Richmond in 1914. Most of the homes in the suburb are spacious wood-frame houses built in Queen Anne or Colonial Revival style and sited on 50-foot-wide lots.

The suburb is split into Northern Barton Heights and Southern Barton Heights. According to residents of the community who were surveyed by Trulia.com, the community has sidewalks, is dog friendly, has easy parking, has well-kept yards, is safe for kids to play outside, has well-lit streets, is buzzing with excitement during holidays, and is walkable to restaurants. Around two-thirds of those surveyed say that the suburb is safe to walk at night, and hosts regular community events. Around half of those surveyed say that the suburb is quiet, has friendly neighbors, and is walkable to grocery stores. The neighborhood is also home to Barton Mansion, Barton Heights Cemetery, Yancey Street Playground, and Battery Park. The neighborhood can be easily accessed from I-95 and I-64.

The neighborhood is spoilt for choice for elementary schools and is served by J.E.B. Stuart Elementary School, Overby-Sheppard Elementary School, Linwood Holton Elementary School, Metropolitan Day School, and Nubian Village Academy. It is also near Henderson Middle School. The area is also served by Open High School, John Marshall High School, and Richmond Community High School.

Dependable Homebuyers is making cash offers to homeowners in the area that are looking to sell their property for myriad reasons. Some might have come in possession of the property through inheritance. Some might be looking to raise quick capital for a business venture or to pay off debt. Some might be going through tumultuous life events and might be looking to put the past behind them and move to a new city or state. Whatever the reason, Dependable Homebuyers has the resources to make a fair cash offer. They even make offers when homes have a lien on them, or when the homeowner is missing mortgage payments, or when the homeowners have a vacant house, or when the home needs plenty of repairs to be habitable, or when the home has bad rental tenants, or even if the home is fire damaged.

When asked about their process of buying a home, a spokesperson for the company says, ?We are giving homeowners an option to quickly get cash for their property assets from a buyer that they can trust. We are trying to help those who are finding it difficult to sell the house even when they go through an agent. Selling a home is a time-consuming process that takes up a lot of the homeowner?s energy and attention. We are cutting through the middlemen and giving the homeowners a safe way to unload their property. You don?t need to clean up, repair, or stage your home. There are no contracts to sign that lock you to an agent for a certain time. We are getting rid of all the tedious paperwork and replacing it with a simple and fast transaction that allows you to move on with your life.
