

As far back as 2012 a study verified the importance of reputation management. Upon researching restaurant ratings on Yelp, the study found that from a scale of 1 to 5, as little as a half-star increased rating could give a restaurant a 19% higher likelihood that all the seats will be full during peak times. "Technology changes nothing, the successful principles and strategies of today were around a hundred years ago, but technology does improve most things", said Tim Glynn.

Adodo Consultancy Services Limited provides various marketing services to their clients, with one of them focusing on Reputation Marketing Strategy. The company is able to offer their clients various tactics to create the right strategy for a business's unique situation, and on a monthly basis, reports will be sent over to the client showing them which platforms need attention. Adodo Consultancy Services stated that their reputation marketing strategy involves many factors such as managing what people say about a company online, building reputation, marketing five-star reputations, developing strategies to project a company's authority within their local market, focusing on feedback and creating interaction with customers, and syndication of the reviews to all major social sites, both in video and text.

Claire Bicknell, Catena Network wrote the following testimonial on Adodo Consultancy Services's website: "Tim and the team at Adodo are so innovative in their suggestions to help me stand out in the market place. They really understand my business and I know that they are a key part of my team. I have no hesitation in recommending them!"
