A chiropractic clinic, based in Thousand Oaks, CA, makes use of the concept of Chiropractic BioPhysics(R) or CBP(R) in the treatments offered. They are proud to announce that, in addition to this technique, they also now see families for general wellness visits. The team encourages everyone to contact them for an initial consultation.

Dr. Nick Brock from the clinic says: "Our mission is to help families live happier and healthier lives through a chiropractic lifestyle. CBP(R) is the leading chiropractic protocol available today that is the top choice of elite chiropractors as it is designed to deal not just with pain, but also with organ dysfunction and disease. This technique focuses on optimizing a person's posture and the alignment of the spinal column."

The chiropractor believes that every individual has a right to a healthy life. He regularly treats children who are dealing with such issues as poor sleeping habits, ADHD, colic, constipation, and ear infections. Dr. Brock also believes that care for the family should start even before the child is born, which is why he also offers extensive chiropractic prenatal care, helping women have a comfortable pregnancy.

He adds: "We are well equipped to answer any questions regarding family care. We ensure that the right combination of techniques will be implemented to provide the best possible results for healing."

Those who have experienced the treatment from Dr. Brock and his team have been exceedingly happy with their results. Slayer C., for instance, says on Yelp: "I had neck pain every morning for years before coming here. I'm not even done with my plan Dr. Brock created for me yet and have virtually no neck or back pain and am on my way to getting rid of my neck hump. I love that I'm not just simply getting adjusted to treat the pain but do traction sessions to fix my neck and back problems that cause the pain. The whole staff here is super friendly and I'm glad I can support such a great local business."

People interested in taking advantage of CBP(R) to become pain-free and regain control over their lives are encouraged to contact the clinic, known as Advanced Chiropractic Rehabilitation, as soon as possible. They offer all clients a free, no obligation initial consultation and have already helped thousands of patients.
