Santa Fe, NM -- Perfectly Whole Pets, makers of the popular STURDY DAWG retractable dog leash, have recently upgraded their product and made it more durable and stronger by adding a new feature: heat compressed ribbon tape.

"Our new heat compressed ribbon is a thick tape that is heat compressed to make it thin and smooth, while retaining its 1/2 inch width. Not only is the result a stronger tape, but it makes for the smoothest retraction possible."

The company's STURDY DAWG retractable leash is one of the very few that has been tested to bear the weight of dogs weighing up to 220 pounds. "Actually, we don't encourage anyone to use a retractable leash with a dog weighing anywhere near 200 pounds. However, what we're pointing out here is that our leash can accommodate large dogs, over 100 pounds, very well."

The leash extends up to 16 feet, and is also ideal for smaller dogs. It has a very soft grip handle and extra smooth two-button lock and release mechanism that can be operated by a single finger or thumb. It also has an upgraded extra strong spring made from pure stainless steel to ensure reliable and smooth retraction.

B. Wachter, who bought the leash when he saw a special introductory offer on Amazon, has only good things to say about the product: "My Golden Retriever is hard on leashes and this is the best retractable leash I've seen for large dogs. It's not only super strong, but also comfortable with a grip that fits your hand and won't slip when your dog goes after the neighborhood squirrel. As a bonus, the leash material is durable and will last for many years.
