Every year, the national Medicare program may lose billions of dollars because of deceptive activity committed by people and companies that deal with this program. This type of illegal activity has an effect on every taxpayer and is a substantial drain on the Medicare program. Arvind Bob Khurana, an experienced healthcare whistleblower lawyer, helps healthcare workers in Louisiana who have evidence of Medicare scams bring civil suits against these entities on behalf of the government. Mr. Khurana and his legal team represent health care workers in civil whistleblower actions, ensuring their welfare and security under the federal False Claims Act.

The CMS (Center for Medicare and Medicaid Services) contracts with numerous people, companies, and organizations that manage Medicare compensations and file claims. They have to essentially rely on these people and businesses to remain in compliance with the regulations. Sadly, many entities are not, and that number may be increasing. Due to the government's lack of resources and holding defrauders responsible, the government must rely on individual healthcare workers in the market to come forward with info so they can hold those who defraud the program liable.

"Fraud against the Medicare program may take many forms," said the Louisiana healthcare whistleblower lawyer "The Fraud can include adjusting patient records to get paid more from Medicare, overcharging the government, providing subpar healthcare services, or products, and many other things. The government relies on private whistleblowers to come forward with direct knowledge and proof of dishonest activities and the government rewards them for their vital support. Through qui tam suits, whistleblowers are able to bring civil claims against those parties on behalf of the federal government under the False Claims Act and can be rewarded for it."

The federal False Claims Act is a federal statute that renders it illegal for anybody to make incorrect Medicare claims or otherwise defraud the federal government. It additionally makes it possible for a healthcare worker with knowledge of fraudulent activity against the Medicare program to file a whistleblower legal action on behalf of the government. In exchange for their info and effort, the whistleblowers may be entitled to collect incentives of between 15 and 30 percent of the money by the government. The act also has stipulations for whistleblower shield against any company retribution which may result from submitting a suit or accepting work with the government.

When a whistleblower steps forward with relevant information concerning Medicare scams, the case is submitted in federal district court. It is put 'under seal' while the Department of Justice investigates the complaint and the proof speaks with witnesses and speaks with experts and company personnel. The government will then decide if it will step in. If the government does not, the whistleblower still may continue the case by themselves.

Due to the fact that health care employees place themselves at risk doing this important work, the federal False Claims Act highly incentivizes the potential whistleblowers with a significant portion of the financial recuperation. In an effective claim, the government can recuperate up to three times its losses to fraudulent activity in addition to charges for each event of fraud. "My purpose as a Medicare whistleblower lawyer is to represent these brave people, to help keep them safe and anonymous, and to work to help ensure that they are compensated for their work," proceeded Mr. Khurana. "Those healthcare workers in Louisiana who have knowledge of deceitful activity can call our offices, and we would be glad to discuss how whistleblower lawsuits work and how the whistleblower may be rewarded and shielded. With their valiant assistance, we can help hold Medicare scams in check and hold those who perpetrate fraud responsible for their actions."
