

Clipper Construction Seeks Assistant Project Manager in Baltimore

November 26, 2021

BALTIMORE, MD - November 26, 2021 -

Baltimore, Maryland - Clipper Construction, a prominent name in commercial general contracting space in Baltimore, has announced that they are seeking to fill an assistant project manager position. The company is seeking to fill this position in their commercial construction management department. Details about the company can be found at https://clipperconstruction.business.site/posts/4279509880894443029. The individual will be expected to work with the firm's project managers and assistant project managers on construction management of commercial projects under $5 million.

"What I like most about working for Clipper Construction is that we are a small company with an established history, but we also retain the energy and attitude of a start-up," said one of their superintendents. "We have a lot of pride in our work and we expect the same from our employees. We also understand that every project must be completed with both our company's values as well as those of the customer."

Clipper Construction has a firm foundation in Baltimore's construction industry, has been able to home in on what they feel is the essence and spirit of the city: hard work and dedication. "We pride ourselves on challenging our employees," stated Michael Winters, chairman of the board for Clipper Construction. "We like to say that 'we make Baltimore, not sell it', and we feel that our employees are an essential component in this success."

Clipper Construction is seeking an assistant project manager who thrives in a fast-paced, startup environment. In this position they will gain experience working on projects in a variety of industries from restaurants and hospitality to laboratories and non-profits. While experience in these industries are not required, it is necessary that they be interested in learning on the job and taking the initiative to problem solve and grow their expertise over time.

The company has hired many local talent over the years, most notably for their commitment to work hard and dedicate themselves to produce quality services. The company is looking for the same qualities in their assistant project manager. They are not looking for a long resume of credentials, but rather an individual who will work hard and be dedicated to the success of Clipper Construction.

"We don't value experience over initiative," said their founder. "We want someone who can learn on the job and grow with the company. If you have a lot of experience working in construction, great! We want someone who can learn from our project managers and assistant project managers, not an individual who will come in and be set in their ways."

Clipper Construction provides commercial general contractor services along with design-build and facilities maintenance and repair. The company specializes in partnering with clients to create, build and maintain building spaces that align to their vision and goals. Their team includes experts in sitework, framing, roofing, demolition, masonry, concrete, drywall, millwork, commercial restaurant kitchens, and high-end finishes.

"We are confident that our commercial construction management department is one of the best in Baltimore," said a founder. "There isn't a project too big or small for us to handle."

According to one of their project managers, "Our supervisors see the potential in all of our employees and they really invest themselves in helping them grow in their construction careers. It's not just about completing projects on time. We always want to exceed client expectations."
