Pensacola, Fla. - With Summer coming to a quick end and a new season approaching, homeowners should touch up their house. If individuals have not changed the decor based on the season, there are still plenty of things to do to give it a fresh look. Doodlebuggers, a cleaning service in Pensacola, has a few end-of-summer cleaning tips.

The first tip they gave was to clean up the patio. Hopefully, the patio was used frequently during the summer. With summer coming to an end, it probably needs to be touched up. If homeowners do not take care of the patio, it will get gross and infested with creatures. They should clean it up, wash the cushions, and check for mold. If mold is found, they should get in touch with a company that deals with mold restoration in Pensacola.

The second tip they gave was to change the air filters. Air conditioners are used intensely during the summer. Most times, they need to be checked and cleaned. Homeowners should check the air filters and if they are dirty, clean them.

The third tip they gave is to clean out the gutters. With fall coming, the gutters should be cleaned appropriately. If gutters are overflowed, they can cause severe water damages which create a series of other problems. Homeowners should do their best to take care of the issues as soon as they can.

Taking care of homes is essential. Every season carries different weather and threats to the health of homes. To better be prepared for them, homeowners should take the time for home maintenance.
