

Jarvis Incorporated, A Company Offering Investigations and Technical Surveillance Countermeasures, Opens A New Office

January 20, 2022

January 20, 2022 -

Jarvis Inc., the experienced intelligence and threat solutions specialists, are pleased to announce that they are expanding their operations and moving its headquarters to a brand new premises. The larger, modern facility marks an exciting new chapter in the firm?s history, allowing them to expand its service and reach even more clients. Since 1983, Jarvis Inc. has been providing security guard and investigative services, alongside consulting and training for both United States government agencies and companies within the private sector.

Owned by highly experienced Veteran Stephen S, the business is now moving premises to a new office. This expansion will provide the team with more space, allowing them to reach even more clientele in the local region. The new property will be located at 7130 S. Lewis Ave, Suite 310, Tulsa, Oklahoma, 74136.

While they might be moving location, Jarvis Inc. will continue to provide the same comprehensive array of security services and training that they have for nearly four decades. This includes armed and unarmed on-site security across Tulsa. Each security guard is professionally trained and licensed by the State of Oklahoma Council and is able to provide entry gate and front desk security alongside CCTV monitoring and more. These officers are also able to offer clients security patrol services, allowing companies to cover much larger areas. Each of these vehicles is equipped with the latest technology, including cameras and GPS systems.

Jarvis Inc. is also able to provide a comprehensive array of investigative services that include helping to prove the theft or violation of intellectual property. The fully licensed and professional team utilizes the latest equipment and techniques to gather the essential facts and evidence to support clients in their legal cases. In addition to intellectual property, the vastly experienced investigators also provide inquiries into agriculture theft and audits as well as workers? compensation fraud.

Crime such as theft and vandalism can be incredibly harmful to a business. Video surveillance systems not only help organizations to monitor their property but they can also act as a deterrent to thieves. Jarvis Inc. employs an experienced team of technicians who can help businesses and property owners to install the highest quality CCTV systems on the market, allowing them to fully monitor and record their premises. These cameras utilize the latest technology, allowing businesses to monitor their property via their computer, tablet, or smartphone.

In addition to CCTV systems, Jarvis Inc. also provides state-of-the-art technical surveillance countermeasure equipment. Having worked with hundreds of clients across the globe, these techniques are performed discreetly, allowing clients to understand the weak points in their technical surveillance and communications before providing them with comprehensive methods to neutralize them.

The new office cements Jarvis Inc?s commitment to the future, allowing them to continue to provide clients across Tulsa with the very best security solutions possible.

Speaking on the move, owner Stephen added, ?We are really excited to be moving into our new office space. For nearly four decades, we have been committed to providing our customers with the most comprehensive security and surveillance services on the market, and we remain dedicated to ensuring we continue to be at the cutting-edge by using the latest technology and techniques. All of our staff are fully trained and licensed, ensuring our clients can enjoy complete peace of mind with our professional and cost-effective solutions.?
