Charlottesville, VA - June 03, 2022 - PRESSADVANTAGE -
Piedmont Paint & Finish, a company based in Charlottesville, VA, wants everyone to know that they are offering commercial painting services in Charlottesville and neighboring areas. They can handle both the interior painting and exterior painting needs of commercial buildings. Interior painting can be disruptive to the operations of a business in the building but they have a lot of experience in providing painting services for a broad range of interior environments. And their painting professionals are expert problem solvers when delivering even the most complex and largest interior painting jobs promptly and under budget.

Meanwhile, exterior painting is essential because it is the exterior of a building that guests and clients will notice first. Piedmont Paint & Finish depends on their years of experience with regards to textures, color combinations, and other factors that contribute to the aesthetics of the building exterior.

It is important to note that there are some differences between commercial painting and residential painting. Commercial painting for commercial buildings or establishments. One important difference is the scale of the painting job. A commercial painting project is usually a much larger painting job and will need a lot of human resources, extensive planning, and large amounts of paint.

Meanwhile, time is money for most businesses, which means that a commercial painting job will likely require the painting professionals to be time-flexible. Commercial painters need to adjust their work hours to ensure that there will be minimal disruption to the business operation, which means that they often have to work during odd hours.

Another important different is that commercial painters have much more expertise and experience compared to house painters. Commercial painters have to work extensively on just one project. And because of the high demand for commercial painters, a commercial painter will likely have worked on several projects. While house painters are likely to have painted several houses, the painting procedure is pretty much the same. But with sufficient training, a house painter can be trained to become a commercial painter.

With regards to the quality of the paint, a commercial painter will be less concerned about the quality because most business owners will not be willing to spend too much on expensive paints, except for hotels and restaurants. This is because of the typically large volume of paint that is required for a commercial painting project. While a residential painting project may just need a few cans of paint, a commercial painting project may need hundreds or even thousands of liters of paint.

And finally, the services provided by commercial painters are very much different from the services offered by house painters. That is why it is important to ensure that a professional painting company can also do commercial painting and not just residential painting.

Founded in 2007, Piedmont Paint & Finish is a local company that works with homeowners and contractors in choosing the best products that will fit their space and budget. They always strive to use low- to no-VOC paints and lacquers whenever possible to ensure that their work has minimal impact on the environment. And as part of their commitment to being environmentally friendly, they are members of the Painting and Decorating Contractors of America and are Lead-Safe Certified with the Environmental Protection Agency. They are frequently recommended to those who are looking for a commercial painting contractor that can easily deliver a number of painting services for an estate or property. And they always work hard to comply with project deadlines, ensure quality prep work, know which products are appropriate for the substrates they are working on, and use the proper application procedure. They are a leading commercial painting contractor serving Charlottesville, Keswick, Nellysford, Ivy, Stony Creek, Richmond, Wintergreen, and the neighboring areas. They also handle painting projects for various institutions, medical facilities, retail properties, and more.
