Clinton Township, MI-based Miller's Home Improvement recently published a blog post talking about residential roofing in the Clinton Township area and when it might be time to repair a roof. The post is meant to offer guidance to those who may suspect their roof needs professional attention, and its content includes tips on identifying signs of damage.

The roof is perhaps the most important part of any structure, which is why it is important to make sure that it is maintained well and that any damage is repaired as soon as it appears. ?Your roof defends your property against extreme weather conditions,? says the blog post. ?With each new storm, your roof deteriorates and gives way to leaks and other damage. Most homeowners would go for a full roof replacement to have peace of mind. However, some roofs will fare better and save more of your cash if you had a roof repair instead. Consider having roof repairs if only a small roofing area suffered during the last rainstorm. A few missing or damaged roofing shingles with small cracks only need a few roof shingles to restore it to full usability.? See more here: Residential Roofing In Clinton Twp.

The age of a roof is a significant factor when deciding whether or not to replace or repair a roof, as is the longevity of the property in question. Extensive damage to a roof over 25 years old usually means the roof should be replaced, but repairing minor damage over the years may make it so the roof will remain perfectly serviceable for decades. Aged roofs suffer from wear and tear and may have missing components, water leaks, or even sustain extensive damage during hurricanes and hailstorms. Any roof beyond 30 years of age must be consistently inspected, and any damage must be repaired promptly in order to ensure that small issues will not be exacerbated to the point that total replacement of the roof is required.

If a roof is only damaged in a small area, it may be enough to merely replace a few shingles in an isolated area. Damaged, torn or missing shingles can be replaced with new ones while other roofing materials may require more complex repairs. This approach comes with the minor disadvantage of it being very difficult to make the new roofing shingles or panels match the rest of the roof. Even if the colors are the same, older shingles are often damaged from exposure.
