November 02, 2018 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Fitness Bags Canada in North Bay, Ontario, has announced a new product launch. The company announced recently that they have officially launched their Fitmark Victory Backpack. The company has recently made headlines when they introduced a new meal management bag for those who meal prep.

A spokesperson for the company says, "We are pleased to announce that our Fitmark Victory Backpack is now available, and you can see it on our website. This bag has so many organizational pockets and is perfect for those of you who are looking to live a healthier lifestyle."

Fitness Bags Canada offers a number of bags that are designed to make meal management easier. Those who are on specific diets, such as Keto, Paleo or others that need to prepare foods for the week will find the bags easy to use. The company states that they take the difficulty out of meal prep.

"Our Fitmark meal prep bags are perfect," says the company representative. "Whatever diet you are on, you are going to find that these have all of the space that you need to prep those meals and keep to your healthy eating lifestyle."

Fitmark bags by Fitness Bags Canada are available through the company's official website or through the Amazon marketplace in Canada. The bags allow users to better manage their daily foods. The newest Fitmark bag is a lightweight and portable food organization bag that features durable manufacturing and a number of essentials. The Victory Bag is a backpack that includes a removable meal prep bag and two seal tight meal containers. The meal containers are all BPA free and dishwasher and microwave safe. Two ice packs are also provided in the bag. The backpack measures more than 12 inches long and 18 inches high. It features easy to access pockets on the outside for sports bottles as well as padded shoulder straps and a shield embossed metal zipper. The company states that the backpack makes carrying meal management products easier and gives room for additional things that need to be carried as well.

Fitness Bags Canada offers a wider variety of meal management bags that are high quality and offer features that are beneficial to those who typically prep and carry their meals with them to work, school or other daily outings. The company sells bags that fall into a number of different categories and says that all of their bags are designed to make life easier for those who use them.

The company was founded in Canada in 2011 to provide essential products for those who want to live healthier lifestyles. They state that their bags offer a number of benefits, giving their users what they need to stay organized throughout the day when it comes to their meals and snacks. The company says that they have a bag that will fit nicely into any budget and their list of products include backpacks, duffel bags, tote bags, and a number of meal management accessories. The company releases new products regularly and says that customers can stay updated on their new offerings by checking their Amazon seller's page or by visiting their official website regularly.

In addition to bags that help with meal management, the company also offers workout bags for those heading off to the gym. They state that their workout bags are very versatile and are popular with those who regularly hit the gym for their workouts. The company says that anyone who is interested in learning more about any of their products can visit them online or on their Instagram page and take a look at the various positive reviews that have been left by other customers. They state that their customers regularly share pictures of themselves with their Fitmark bags.

The company states that the new Fitmark Victory Backpack is now available for ordering either through the company's official website or on their Amazon Canada seller's page. Those who want to get more organized or anyone who plans and then carries their food with them to work, school or other locations daily will find the backpack with food prep extras to be very beneficial.

The company says that they will be adding new products again in the future, and states that anyone who would like to stay updated about their future products can follow their official Fitmark Instagram page where announcements are typically made. Those who are interested can visit the company online to see this newest bag and the entire collection of Fitmark bags that they currently offer.
