November 26, 2018

November 26, 2018 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Terry Stevens of Your Local HVAC Inc. announces that they are now offering on-call air conditioning repair in Houston, Texas. Your Local HVAC has been family-owned and operated since 1986, relying on a word-of-mouth marketing strategy. Today, they have decided to launch an on-call program, making them available 24 hours a day for their customer's AC and heating needs.

Air Conditioning in Texas is a necessity in the heat of summer, but as the high temperatures tend to stick around through the year, a functioning AC system is still desired. Your Local HVAC Inc provides many great benefits including free estimates, financing, and emergency service. They assist with both residential needs and commercial property needs.

When asked about this announcement, Terry Stevens had this to say, "It's Texas. It gets very, very hot in the summer and a malfunctioning air conditioning system is simply not an option. We'll take your call day or night. Though we get hot temperatures nearly year-round, sometimes it gets cold, too. Our technicians are trained to also service heating systems, in case that is a problem during our cooler months."

Your Local HVAC offers a host of services for AC and heating repair and maintenance. For cold air needs, they can help with central air conditioning repair, air compressor repair, or replacing the AC system altogether. For heating needs, they can repair or replace a furnace when needed. Home or business owners in Houston can visit the website to learn more by clicking here: <https://www.yourlocalhvac.com>.

Tony S., a Louisville, KY resident, was helping his family in Houston with their AC repair needs. He worked directly with Your Local HVAC and shared his experience on Yelp, "I have family in Houston that needed their air conditioner fixed in 100+ degree weather and Thomas (my cousin) said that Terry's guys came out within an hour or so and had them up and going in no time at all. I just want to shout out for them and say thank you very much."

Though emergencies happen and Your Local HVAC Inc is happy to help when the problem arises, they also offer AC maintenance packages to prevent disaster. An emergency repair can be expensive, especially if the repair has to be done at night or on the weekends. Terry at Your Local HVAC recommends a maintenance schedule in order to prevent breakdowns. ?During the summer months, your AC is blasting day and night to keep your home cool. Even in the winter months, it may still be a bit warm on some days, meaning your AC system needs to function year-round. Regular maintenance will ensure that emergency visits aren't necessary, ultimately saving you money.?

It is also especially important in the winter season to have an air conditioning system evaluated and maintained. Winter season is nearly synonymous with flu season, so air quality is increasingly important during these cooler months. Your Local HVAC utilizes the latest technology to help maintain the air quality that travels through the home via the air conditioning system. They recommend that the system is checked regularly to prevent harmful gasses and viruses from entering the home through the system. Randy Bridges has been a Your Local HVAC Inc client since 2000 with a regular maintenance schedule for his AC and furnace. This is the experience he wanted to share, ?I am happy that I decided to call Your Local HVAC when my AC broke down in the summer heat of 2000. They came out quickly and serviced my AC unit and I was so glad they did. After that, I had a regular maintenance visit schedule with them and my AC unit hasn't broken down since. I am glad to be a regular customer of this company and would recommend them to anyone!?

Your Local HVAC Inc also provides air duct cleaning service - a necessity in the dusty state of Texas. Though the exterior unit is designed to pump in only fresh air, clean air, particles still make their way through the air ducts and collect. Even though the air goes through filters before it enters the liveable areas of the home, the build-up of the particulates makes it more and more difficult for the air filters to do their job - plus homeowners go through air filters a lot more frequently which costs money. Your Local HVAC performs air duct cleaning services to ensure that homeowners and their families are breathing clean air and also saving money on replaceable air filters.
