Garden Way Retirement Community, in Eugene, Oregon, wants to emphasize that they are offering unique resort-style retirement living focused on providing a comfortable environment for its senior residents and their families. Residents have access to attractive gardens, private event rooms, and several activities and events designed to promote spending time with their loved ones, thus enhancing their physical, emotional, and spiritual well-being.

On-site amenities encourage senior residents to spend time with families, such as their grandchildren. On-site offerings include a playroom for grandchildren, a private Coca-Cola parlor, wellness center, movie theater, computer center, fitness center, hair salon, and library. This ensures that visiting family members get to enjoy their bonding moments with the seniors.

Sarah Peters from Sunshine Retirement Living, the parent company that manages the retirement living community in Eugene, says, "While most retirees have to hit the road to gain access to all of these amenities, those who live at Garden Way are a short walk from them all, making these activities easily accessible despite the weather. Perhaps the most important offering of all is an invitation to bring beloved pets, who can help residents transition, offer emotional support, and give grandchildren something to swoon about.?

Sarah wants to stress that the convenient location of Garden Way right in the heart of Eugene, Oregon, allows residents to have convenient access to shopping, entertainment, and key services like clinics, hospitals, and pharmacies. Garden Way also provides free transportation services during business hours for residents who would like to attend events or appointments in greater Eugene.

Residents of Garden Way Retirement Community feel like they are living in a luxurious vacation home with all-day, restaurant-style dining choices that can accommodate any kind of diet and the full range of preferences when it comes to food. Other interesting activities include yoga, scenic drives, and pet therapy. Garden Way also provides a special focus on activities that promote health like wellness programs, exercise classes, and a completely equipped fitness center that is made available at no additional cost to residents.

And because the Garden Way Retirement Community wants to offer luxurious living to residents both indoors and outdoors, they have paid close attention and consideration to the interior and exterior details of the campus.
