December 12, 2018 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Paul Ashley of B Clean Windows in Frisco, TX, announced a window cleaning service for residential property owners wanting to sell their home. First impressions can make all the difference when any owner is trying to sell their house, some buyers make their minds up on the curb and may not even venture inside if it doesn't look quite right. In terms of payback for investment, cleaning the windows can give one of the best paybacks so take the initiative and get the most bang for those hard earned bucks, just make sure you read the Window Cleaning Reviews first!

When selling any home, make sure those all-important home pictures include bright shiny windows which bring in the sun into the house virtually every buyer now views the pictures on line before coming taking the first step into the house. Expect them to drive by long before they are ready to view homes, and once the house is up for sale, expect them to continue to drive by.

Dirty windows can set the tone for expectations for price negotiation, any sign of general neglect can be an inside track to having additional real estate comps in those final negotiations after a price is agreed, resulting in sellers getting unexpectedly far less than they hoped when they first heard the word offer.

The reasons buyers want a home can be tied directly to how they feel inside when they get inside. Allowing pure sunlight to fill living areas with natural energy through sparkling clean windows is the best way to brighten everyone's day. Even in the winter, window washing can help bring the sun's natural energy into the home as well as providing the perfect frame for holiday decorations. Feng Shui recognises that light is the strongest manifestation of energy which can influence health.

Even if a homeowner has no intention of selling, regular maintenance of the windows and gutters can help avoid more costly, unexpected repairs. Many home owners struggle to find window cleaner who will do a great job every time, not just the first time. Some firms only clean the outside of windows, leaving home owners to struggle to do the same quality of cleaning on the inside.

"Homeowners find cleaning windows to be a tedious, dangerous and frustrating job to do without the proper tools and experience. Climbing up on ladders, hanging out of high places can be scary for some. Even after all the hard work, chances are there will still be some streaks and smears," said Paul Ashley.

To find B Clean Windows, simply search for "Window cleaners near me" and it will come up with a list of firms nearby. Paul Ashley advised, "Before hiring window cleaners, ensure they are fully insured, and that they use window cleaning solutions which won't do any damage. B Clean Windows can clean residential windows up to three stories tall, both inside and outside, and our team will vacuum, scrub, wash and mop up with weekend appointments available."

"My father, Bob Ashley started his window cleaning company shortly after retiring. He truly loved meeting interesting people, and he taught me how to take pride in my work and have attention to detail. I carry on the family business and have made his reputation my own to provide a fast, prompt, courteous and professional service. Dirty cobweb windows with dirt in the tracks can make any home feel like it's dirty. A clean window helps in the filtering of light and atmosphere and provides brightness to the room," said Paul Asher.

B Clean Windows' friendly staff will scrub all windows with a non-abrasive scrubby pad and use professional window cleaning scrapers to remove all debris off windows inside and out. B Clean Windows offer a hassle-free no-obligation estimate directly from the website.
