Miami rear end accident lawyer David H. Charlip (https://charliplawgroup.com/miami-rear-end-accident-lawyer/) releases a new article explaining the common causes of rear-end car collisions in Florida. The lawyer mentions that rear-end car accidents are some of the most common types of car accidents. Often, rear-end car collisions happen when one vehicle is stationary and is hit by another vehicle from behind. Victims are usually not able to make any evasive maneuvers because they are not able to see the other vehicle coming at them.

According to the Miami rear end accident lawyer, ?Rear-end car accidents in Miami usually occur when a vehicle is struck from behind by another vehicle. These accidents usually take place at a stop sign, at traffic lights, or in congested traffic. The majority of rear-end car accidents happen at low speeds, but they can also occur on highways and other high-speed roads.?

The lawyer mentions that rear-end car collisions can have the same effect as being tackled from behind. The sudden impact and the victim?s unpreparedness can result in serious injuries. Even with a seatbelt on, the victim may still suffer from injuries that can cost a lot and require lengthy rehabilitation.

Attorney David H. Charlip explains that the common factors that cause rear-end collisions include driver distraction, aggressive driving, dangerous weather conditions, drunk driving, and fatigue. Any of these factors can all contribute to a Miami rear-end collision. It is important to always keep these factors in mind in order to prevent getting into an accident.

In the article, the attorney adds, ?Many people think that rear-end collisions are just minor fender benders. However, it is possible to sustain serious injuries when a car rear-ends another vehicle in Miami. Injuries from this type of accident can last for many months, if not years.?

Lastly, the personal injury attorney emphasizes the importance of having a skilled lawyer when it comes to matters such as filing an injury claim after a car accident. An experienced personal injury lawyer may be able to help the victim receive the compensation they deserve.
