CPR Training Nurse, a provider of courses for cardiopulmonary resuscitation (CPR) training in Dallas, Texas, wants to stress the importance of CPR training and first aid. Indeed, knowledge of CPR has been proven many times to be crucial in saving lives. One example involves a 50-year-old financial executive in Manhattan who suffered a sudden cardiac arrest and had stopped breathing. Nevertheless, he was able to survive his near-death experience.

The reason the financial executive was able to live to tell about his experience was that fellow residents at the bungalow colony where he and his family were spending the summer vacation were trained to do CPR. The moment he stopped breathing, his fellow vacationers knew what to do. One performed chest compressions while another called for an ambulance. A third one ran to the social hall to get an automated external defibrillator (AED).

As it turned out, the ambulance took 10 minutes to arrive, which meant that if the other vacationers had not conducted CPR and used an AED, the brain would have been permanently damaged and death would have followed a few minutes later. The patient regained consciousness a few moments after receiving the shock from the AED, which caused the heart to work again, pumping oxygen-rich blood to the body and the brain.

Jenny Ashley, owner and founder of CPR Training Nurse, says, "CPR Training can make a difference between life and death. Administering CPR helps maintain vital blood flow to the heart and brain until emergency personnel can give advanced care. CPR, when provided immediately, can double the chance of survival. We urge people to check out the schedule of our courses."

They have been providing courses for certified instructors in basic life support (BL), CPR, AED, bloodborne pathogens and first aid for day care providers, church nurseries, elementary schools, high schools, nursery schools, middle schools, boy and girl scout leaders, and all medical professionals. These tools can make a difference between life and death. The BLS courses offered also provide certification and re-certification requirements to medical professionals.

Those who have completed the courses have expressed their satisfaction by providing highly positive reviews. For instance, Mary R gave a five star rating and said, "Jenny was fabulous with her instructions and directions. Jenny made me an emergency walk in. Had to have it done before I went back to work the next evening. Had a death in the family and I was unable to get my CPR completed before I left and my CPR had expired while I was gone. Thank you Jenny for being available and so flexible with your schedule. You are the greatest. I would recommend. Loving Heart to everyone."

Joshua H also gave the CPR training course provider five stars and said, "Jenny is amazing, she is a wonderful teacher and makes the learning process feel very easy. I will definitely be coming back when I need to renew my Basic Life Support!"

Meanwhile, Jenny has posted a number of videos on YouTube to provide a glimpse of what people can expect when they take part in one of the classes. Furthermore, she has posted several videos showing how CPR and the AED have been used in real life situations to save the life of a person who has stopped breathing. In still another set of videos, it is shown how American Heart Association instructors were conducting CPR in a course for AED Frisco TX Heartsaver.

The founder of CPR Training Nurse had worked as a nurse for two doctors, and this was when she gained experience in performing a number of tests for patients, from blood test and x-rays to stress testing and heart monitoring. Later, she worked in home health and that was when she realized the importance of knowing how to perform CPR in order to save a life.
