New Jersey (NJ) based Englewood Home Protection Pros is pleased to announce that they have recently expanded their Home Security Services to Englewood, Tenaflly, Fort Lee, and the surrounding areas.

According to the latest statistics from the FBI, there was an estimated 7.6 million property related crimes in the US in 2017. Though it had seen a decline of 7.6% from the previous year, victims of property crimes (excluding arson) have collectively suffered financial losses of about $15.3 billion during the aforementioned period. Furthermore, the FBI's data shows that the criminal arrest rate for burglary was at 61.7% per 100,000 inhabitants.

Based on a report from the National Burglary and Fire Alarm Association, a robbery happens every 15 seconds in the US, where the average loss per victim is estimated to be $1,700. However, only 1 out of 4 property owners use some type of home security system to safeguard their families, said Ruben Miller of Englewood Home Protection Pros.

According to the company's website at <https://englewoodhomeprotectionpros.business.site/>, a number of home security devices can cost as little as $10, but this investment can easily increase unnecessarily as people unknowingly add items to their home protection kits. Due to this, experts recommend that homeowners seek professional advice before buying a device or signing-up for a home security system plan.

Miller explained that home security systems not only protect a property from theft and damage, but also add significant value to a piece of real estate. However, he also urged everyone to take extra precautions when choosing a home security service provider, due to the presence of a number of unreliable companies operating within the market.

He advised homeowners to be wary of companies boasting hard-to-resist offers, those that seem too good to be true, because this usually means these companies lack the expertise and proper knowledge concerning installation, technical support, and security system monitoring. In addition to this, he also explained that most companies are upselling and hard selling their security systems just to meet their sales quota. Once they close the deal, customer support becomes non-existent.

?You also need to consider your budget when choosing a home security plan. For example, motion detectors (depending on how many you need for your home), sirens, door or window contacts, a control panel, and so on can quickly add up on your bill. We recommend doing your research first, identifying your needs, and looking for a company that can offer a system that is great value for your money. Furthermore, you should be aware that installing a home security system is not a one time expense. You still have to take care of its monthly monitoring expenses, so choose wisely,? Miller said.

Furthermore, Miller warned everyone to carefully read and study a contractual agreement before signing on it, because a number of home security system providers trick homeowners into signing an agreement that binds them exclusively to the company?s services forever. He also explained that the devices and monitoring services can be bought separately, and a company cannot force someone to purchase both from them. Finally, he enumerated a number of reliable brands that he trusts when it comes to home security systems. These include Caddx, DSC, and Ademco, among others.

Those looking for a professional home security system provider in <https://goo.gl/maps/ybSELzWKqr32> and the surrounding areas may consider Englewood Home Protection Pros.

?We provide NJ residents with an all-in-one solution for all their home security needs. Our services include a free property review that comes with a comprehensive report to help homeowners decide which one of the many available home security systems can best address their needs. In addition to this, we also offer our proprietary system that comes with advanced tamper-resistant technology, and features wireless motion sensors with onboard image sensors and high resolution cameras that will help you keep an eye on what?s happening on your property 24/7,? Miller said. He also explained that their video cameras are equipped with night vision technology, with adjustable pan and tilt features for more enhanced security and flexibility at any time of the day.
