December 03, 2015 -
Littleware Containers, a business in Eagle Mountain, Utah, has revealed that they have launched their new snack containers. The containers, which come in a set of four in yellow and green, have already been positively received. Designed to hold small snacks, they are suitable in lunch boxes for both adults and children alike.

"We love our new snack pots and we're so happy to see other people love them too," says Erin Downs from Littleware Containers. "They look fun with their green and yellow lids and they are very easy to use by both adults and children. We are also very proud to say they are fully made in the USA, thereby supporting the local economy."

These snack pots are great for on the go. They come with an easy open flip top, which is threaded to prevent spills. Additionally, the pots come with an easy to use handle, which is great for young children to carry. In fact, they could even be used as cups, for instance, during a camping trip.

While only having been released for a short period of time, the snack pots have already received numerous positive reviews. "These cups are perfect," says Jody Bennett. "My toddler loves the handle on the side and carries them around everywhere. I keep them loaded and ready to go for whenever he needs a snack. He knows right where to go to find them."

Littleware Containers is known for its innovative and high quality containers. One of their other very popular products is the baby food storage container, which has been designed to fit in bottle warmers as well. For Littleware, the goal is to create products that are effective and efficient, as well as being completely safe. Additionally, they hope that their products will encourage better healthy eating habits.

"Our snack pots are so much fun that children absolutely love them," adds Erin Downs. "It is so easy to put some healthy snacks in there for kids and, in so doing, encourage them to actually eat them as well. Anything we can do to ensure people become healthier is a bonus."
