Roseville, CA ? Roseville Tree Service Pros, a tree care and preservation company, is proud to introduce its biodegradable tree bracing system. This innovative new product has the potential to revolutionize the way trees are preserved and protected. It is made from 100% natural materials and designed to be environmentally friendly and cost-effective.

"We are excited to offer this cutting-edge product that will help protect our trees in the long run," said Saih Küçükaslan, Roseville Tree Service Pros CEO. "Our biodegradable tree bracing system is a revolutionary way to preserve trees without harming the environment. We believe it will significantly impact how we protect our planet's precious resources."

The biodegradable tree bracing system consists of two components: straps and clips. The straps are made from jute, a natural fiber plant grown in India, and provide support and stability to young or damaged trees. The clips are made from recycled, biodegradable materials and are designed to securely attach the straps to the tree.

In addition to being environmentally friendly, the biodegradable tree bracing system is highly durable and long-lasting. The straps can withstand harsh weather conditions and remain firmly in place even during strong winds or heavy rains. The clips are also designed to be corrosion-resistant and have been tested for maximum strength.
