March 21, 2023 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Burbank, CA - Burbank Tree Professionals, a leading tree care and landscaping company, is proud to announce the launch of their Native Tree Planting Program. The new initiative seeks to restore biodiversity in urban areas by planting native trees in neighborhoods across the city.

?At Burbank Tree Professionals, we are dedicated to helping protect and restore our environment,? said Adem Yasa, CEO of Burbank Tree Professionals. ?We understand that urban areas can be hotspots for ecological decline due to lack of natural habitat, so we wanted to create a program to help restore and enhance these ecosystems.?

The Native Tree Planting Program will bring much-needed plant diversity to Burbank to create habitats for local wildlife and provide access to nature for people living in urban areas. In addition, trees provide essential shade and protection from the sun and wind and help reduce air pollution and improve water quality.

The program will use a variety of native trees, including species such as Live Oaks, Sycamores, and Redwoods. All trees will be carefully selected and maintained by certified arborists from Burbank Tree Professionals. More information on what the arborists working at Burbank Tree Professionals do for homeowners can be gleaned here: https://www.treeserviceslosangeles.com/burbank/.

?Our team of experienced arborists has been working hard to identify the perfect species and locations to ensure that the trees thrive in their new homes,? Yasa continued. ?We want to ensure that these trees can survive and thrive in the long term, so we are taking all necessary precautions to ensure their success.?

In addition to providing habitat for local wildlife, Burbank Tree Professionals is also looking to partner with local schools and community organizations to help educate residents on how to care for the new trees properly. In doing so, they hope to inspire a new generation of environmental stewards who value nature and its importance in creating a healthier planet.

?It is our mission to create a healthy and sustainable relationship between humans and nature,? Yasa said. ?By connecting people back to nature, we can create a more harmonious relationship between us and the environment. Our Native Tree Planting Program is just the beginning of a larger effort to restore biodiversity in urban areas and create a better future for everyone.?

As part of the program, Burbank Tree Professionals will offer free consultations to homeowners and businesses interested in having native trees planted on their properties.
