Coronado, California based Perfectly Vivid has released a new industrial maintenance flashlight that is designed to be the perfect companion for maintenance workers. Dr. Christopher Vogelmann, founder of the company, states, "Our tactical flashlight is a great tool for those in the maintenance industry, due to its small size, and bright, efficient and long lasting light."

The flashlight is specifically designed for rugged use, made from materials that won't break easily according to Vogelmann. He states that in collaboration with the product release, the company has also launched its Facebook page to keep consumers updated on new products and information regarding current promotions. The Facebook page can be accessed at https://www.facebook.com/perfectlyvivid/?fref=ts.

Vogelmann states that the industrial maintenance flashlight "travels well and fits easily into your pocket." This he says is what makes it the perfect choice for those doing maintenance work. In addition to the rugged design, he says that the small size will make it much easier for those who work on machines to be able to carry the flashlight around, as opposed to larger devices that must be actually carried in the hand.

The company says that the size of the flashlight is only one of the benefits. Vogelmann states that it was designed specifically to give off a lot of light and that it "works perfectly for those who need to see into cramped or tight spaces." The LED lighting makes it a suitable tool designed for seeing inside machinery.

Perfectly Vivid offers consumer products, most of which are designed for longevity and durability. The flashlight contains high lumen output and a focusing lens, a fact that the company believes makes it applicable for industrial maintenance. It is constructed of aircraft grade aluminum, is waterproof, and contains multiple memory modes for more than one user. The LED lighting is designed to last for up to 100,000 hours.

The flashlight is currently available for purchase through the Amazon marketplace. Those interested in learning more, including the benefits of the flashlight and other products currently offered, can visit Perfectly Vivid on their official website at http://perfectlyvivid.com/.
