Northwestern Hair Restoration, a clinic based in Chicago, IL, wants to highlight their hair restoration process, which is known as follicle unit extraction (FUE). One of the specific techniques they use is the MicroFUE, where MICRO stands for minimally invasive collection by reticular oscillation. It is important to note that hairs need more than just follicles to be healthy. They also require connecting tissue and oil glands. That is why MicroFUE gently collects healthy hairs using vibration and suction. Thus, while standard FUE hairs may look unnatural and some may not survive, healthier hairs have been observed with MicroFUE.

The reliability of their methods used at Northwestern Hair Restoration has been attested to by the many highly positive reviews they have been receiving from clients. They currently have an enviable overall rating of 5.0 out of 5 stars on Google.

In one recent review, Andrew M. gave them five stars and said, ?I couldn?t have asked for a better experience. I had been thinking about getting this hair procedure done for a couple of years, and finally booked a consultation with NW Hair. Dr. Vinay was extremely professional, and just made the entire process seem so much simpler. From the great care and after care videos they have on their website, to the constant communication, I was able to have with their team throughout the process, I was thoroughly impressed from start to finish. The actual procedure was such a wonderful environment. I was the only client in the building that day, so it gave me full attention of the staff, and everything feel calm and comfortable. If you were thinking about doing a hair procedure, I cannot recommend Northwestern Hair enough. I?m so happy I had this done and look forward to continuing my relationship with them as touchups are needed throughout the years.?

The process followed by Northwestern Hair Restoration starts with a one-on-one consultation. In this initial consultation with the physicians at the clinic, there will be no high-pressure sales but simply a discussion of the various options available. Aside from the MicroFUE, they can also offer the Smart Graft, which is the latest technology that offers great results at a competitive price. There is also the Discrete FUE, which doesn?t require the buzz cut to provide a more natural look and discreteness.

After the client has made a choice as to the specific hair restoration procedure to use, the cost for the procedure is estimated. This is mainly based on the number of grafts to be made. The physician makes an estimate of the number of grafts needed based on the head size, hair density, hair thickness, skin color, hair waviness, and hair color. For clients who require financing, the monthly cost of financing is determined for six months, 24 months, or 36 months.

During the scheduled day, the client will just have to show up and Northwestern Hair Restoration will handle everything. They can also provide additional treatments that can be used to address areas with less hair loss. This allows for some savings. For instance, micropigmentation camouflages may be used. This involves tattooing the scalp using temporary ink.

Northwestern Hair Restoration has some of the best hair restoration doctors available in Chicago. They are: Vinay Rawlani, MD; Clark Schierle, MD PhD, and Carmen Ramirez, DSc. Dr. Rawlani, who heads the clinic, is a physician-inventor and was a Louis E Fazen Endowed Scholar. He is a strong believer in natural and discrete hair replacement techniques. Dr. Schierle, who founded Northwestern Hair Restoration, started his MD/PhD at Harvard at the age of 16 and played a major role in making the clinic a leader in FUE and hair restoration. Meanwhile, with her Doctorate in Science and 23 years of experience, Dr. Ramirez is one of the leaders in trichology in hair restoration.

Those who are looking for a hair restoration clinic in Chicago can check out the Northwestern Hair Restoration website or contact them on the phone or through email. They are open from 8:00 am to 5:00 pm, from Monday to Friday.
